

Contents

Acknowledgements	vii
BOWMAN, M. B. J. & SMYTH, H. R. Reducing uncertainty and risk through field-based studies	1
Health and safety in the field
GILL, C. E. & LYNN, G. J. Keeping safe in the field: what, how and why?	9
Fieldwork in frontier and mature basins
RACEY, A., FISHER, J., BAILEY, H. & ROY, S. K. The value of fieldwork in making connections between onshore outcrops and offshore models: an example from India	21
VOSGERAU, H., PASSEY, S. R., SVENNEVIG, K., STRUNCK, M. N. & JOLLEY, D. W. Reservoir architectures of interlava systems: a 3D photogrammetrical study of Eocene cliff sections, Faroe Islands	55
HURST, A., HUUSE, M., DURANTI, D., VIGORITO, M., JAMESON, E. & SCHWAB, A. Application of outcrop analogues in successful exploration of a sand injection complex, Volund Field, Norwegian North Sea	75
ROSSI, M. & CRAIG, J. A new perspective on sequence stratigraphy of syn-orogenic basins: insights from the Tertiary Piedmont Basin (Italy) and implications for play concepts and reservoir heterogeneity	93
Reservoir and field development
HIRST, J. P. P. Ordovician shallow-marine tidal sandwaves in Algeria – the application of coeval outcrops to constrain the geometry and facies of a discontinuous, high-quality gas reservoir	135
BOWMAN, A. Outcrop analogues for hydrocarbon reservoirs in the Columbus Basin, offshore east Trinidad	151
DONOVAN, A. D. Making outcrops relevant for an unconventional source rock play: an example from the Eagle Ford Group of Texas	193
Fieldwork techniques current application and new developments
SANDERSON, D. J. Field-based structural studies as analogues to sub-surface reservoirs	207
JORDAN, C. J. & NAPIER, B. Developing digital fieldwork technologies at the British Geological Survey	219
NEWELL, A. J. & SHARIATIPOUR, S. M. Linking outcrop analogue with flow simulation to reduce uncertainty in sub-surface carbon capture and storage: an example from the Sherwood Sandstone Group of the Wessex Basin, UK	231
Uncertainty characterization
PEEL, F. J. & WHITE, J. Do technical studies reduce subsurface risk in hydrocarbon exploration: and if not, how do they add value?	247
Index	261